FAMILY INTERCOURSE.

This is a sore subject to touch. One feels like treading on a hundred corns While the night-winds mean and murmur like a all at once. Nearly every family has its sore spots—its dark corner—its private closet, carefully locked up and the inul terior hidden from the light of day. It seems strange to say that most family difficulties arise from the ignorance of the different members of each other, and yet it is sadly true. Many families live together for years, and separate, knowing less of each other's secret feelings, motives, and the springs which guide action, than of others who have lived together outside the family circle. Small jealousies, petty selfihness creep in and produce estrangement, which frequently mars the happiness of a lifetime.

There is little appreciation of the divine beauty and loving graceful possibilities of the family relation. It is so common a fact that we lose sight of its isdam just as water to to hank ful that the sun shines, or that be dew and rain fall. 11,567 3,669,98 It thus appears that the same white population the six South Atlantic States have more than double as many churches and two-thirds as many more church-sittings as the six New England States. It may be said that the New England States have large foreign population; but this is mostly Catholic, and noted for the liberality with which it builds and equips churches. It may be further said that many freedmen churches have been built South since the war by Northern contributions; but the increase in Southern churches in 1870 over 1860 is 1,296, and leaving these out of the question entirely the 3,450,000 white people in the six South Atlantic States have still 10,271 churches to 5,421 to the 3,450,000 white people of the six

Another curious revelation of the census of 1870, taking the same States, is as to the relative number of paupers and criminals in their respective native white populations. CONGRESSIONAL DUELS.

It was during the administration of Mr. Monroe that a collision occurred in the Senate between General Samuel Smith of Maryland, and Mr. Lloyd, of And forms that were lost in the long ago Massachusetts, the result of which gave much satisfaction at the North. General Smith was a known fighting man, a brave soldier, who had rendered important service in the war of 1812. He was a large, imposing figure of a man, of peremptory manner, and rather inclined to be dictatorial and overbearing. Mr. Lloyd, on the contrary, was small in statue, delicate and almost effeminate in appearance, dressing always in elegant style, and looking like a courtier Ah, Miriam Claire! with thy golden hair, of the days of Louis XIV. In the course of discussion Mr. Lloyd had controverted with some sharpness and great effect certain statements and arguments of General Smith. A logical reply suitable to the case did not occur to the Senator; so, instead of reaffirming his facts and attempting to confute the reasoning of Mr. Lloyd, he tried the effect of a little personal intimida-

If their own principles or the sentiments of their constituents prevent them from giving satisfaction should take care not to wound the feelings of Senators who were educated in a different school."

Mr. Galliard, of South Carol residing in the Senate in the absence of the Vice-President, and he, knowing of the stuff Mr. Lloyd was made, smiled quite significantly as General Smith took his seat. On the part of Senators lively interest as Mr. Lloyd rose to reply. He spoke in a low voice, and in a tone as mild as if he were inviting a lady to take a turn in a waltz.

"Mr. President, I am not acquainted with the sentiments of my State upon what the Senator calls the doctrine of personal responsibility. I recognize this doctrine to its fullest extent, and am prepared to be held responsible in any way for every word I utter on this floor. Furthermore, Sir, in order to prevent any misconception hereafter, I give the Senator from Maryland to know that I shall hold him responsible for every word he speaks derogatory to my character or injurious to my feel-

General Smith made no rejoinder, and the flurry passed, but it was observed thereafter that there was a studied courtesy in the bearing of all the fireeaters toward Mr. Lloyd.

The last fatal Congressional duel was that in which poor Cilley lost his life. The quarrel was a political one, and Cilley was a sacrifice to the rancor of party strife. There was no personal animosity on the part of the antagonists. They fought with rifles, at forty paces. Cilley was an expert shot with the rifle, while Graves was wholly unused to the weapon. A side wind was blowing fresh as the parties took their ground, and the fatal shot was a chance one altogether. Cilley was a brave man, but he could not control his nerves. On the first fire his ball struck the ground not more than forty feet off. Graves was perfectly cool and collected, and at the third shot Cilley fell, mortally wounded. Henry A. Wise accompanied Graves to the field, and General

ley. They were much censured for allowing more than one shot, the difficulty being a technical one only; but the fact is, they went on the ground tied up by an agreement made by the great leaders of the two political parties from which they did not feel themselves at liberty to deviate. Their fatal mistake consisted in accepting the conditions by which the combat was to be governed. Cilley died on the field, but his fate was preferable to that of Graves, who lingered a few years a melancholy wreck, wasting away the remainder of his life in remorse and misery.—Harper's.

AGUE AND FEVER

CHILLS AND FEVER The preprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the safe, certain, speedy, and permanen cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southwestern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion, that in no case whatever will it fail to cure, if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for week or two after the disease has checked, more especially in difficul long standing cases. Usually, this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order; should the patient. however, require a cathartic medicine,

PREPARED BY Dr. J. C. AYER & CO., Practical Chemists, LOWELL, MASS., U. S. A. FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE Clinton Street. Hickman, Menta

Every year increases the popularity of this valuable Hair Preparation; which is due to merit alone. We MERCHANTS and CABINET can assure our old patrons that it is kept fully up to its high standard; and it is the only reliable and perfected preparation for restoring GRAY OR FADED HATR to its youthful color, making it soft, lustrous, and silken. The scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean. It removes all eruptions and dandruff, and, by its tonic properties, prevents the hair from falling out, as it stimulates and nourishes the hair-glands. By its use, the hair grows thicker and stronger. In baldness, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, and will create a new growth except in extreme old age. It is the most economical HAIR DRESSING ever used, as it requires fewer applications, and gives the hair a splendid, glossy ppearance. A. A. Haves, M.D., State Assayer of Massachusetts, says, "The constituents are pure, and care-fully selected for excellent quality; Jan 14 fully selected for excellent quality; and I consider it the BEST PREPA-RATION for its intended purposes." Sold by all Druggists, and Dealers in Medicines. Price One Dollar.

Buckingham's Dye. FOR THE WHISKERS. As our Renewer in many cases requires too long a time, and too much care, to restore gray or faded Whiskers, we have prepared this dye, in one preparation; which will quickly and effectually accomplish this result. It is easily applied, and produces a color which will neither rub nor wash off. Sold by all Druggists. Price Fifty Cents. Manufactured by R. P. HALL, & CO., NASEUA, N.H.
